Y JACKSON'S FIGHT AGAINST MONEY POWER

itanic Struggle the Story of Which Is of Peculiar Interest Just Now.

Jackson's principle of referring all questions to the people for decision whenever possible, it was supposed that he must have knowledge of some facts about the bank and the stock declined from 125 to 116.

HIL

But the partisans of the bank in congress were not idle. This part of the message was referred in both houses. In the house the committee on ways for the intellect of Andrew Jackson—

Sign of the control of the proposed state of the control of the co

Jackeon's principle of referring all questions to the people for decision when the people for decision which was good for the masses than the people for decision the people for decision which was good for the masses than the people for decision the people for the people for decision the people for the people for decision the people for the people for the people for decision the people for the people for the people for the people for decision the people for the people for vill increase in severity as it moves east ward and will be most severe in the At-antic States about the 20th.

THE COLDEST PART OF THE MONTH

He began by revolutionizing the paper in appearance and by enthering toucther the best starf of men that money could precure.

He employed Julius Chambers and sent him to this city as Washington corresponding at a sulary of $10,000 a year with a burean of five men. Mr. Chambers signed dispatches from the capitol are daily fearly the sum from the property of the capitol are daily fearly the sum of the property of the capitol are daily fearly at intervals of nine years. If we use civil time, beginning at midnight, there are just as many such cases and at the same intervals, but not always in the same months.

Is it a lack of plant food or a lack of moisture in the soil that causes farm lands to wear out or become poor after lands to wear out or become poor after producing corn, or wheat, or oats continually for a number of years? The practical farmer and the theoretical farmer are agreed that it is a lack of plant food, and they are radically wrong. The soil does not lose plant, food, but loses the conditions that enable it to hold moisture. Restore these conditions by indection irrigation and the soil will as rich as ever. So long as deep-rooted grasses are kept growing on the soil it never wears out, because the decay of these grisss roots leaves open pores or holes in the soil that let in the water.

Corn, outs and wheat are shallow rooted and where they are repeatedly grown the subsail becomes parked and impervious to water. Clover, particularly alfaifa, has very deep roots and for that reason rapidly reatores fertility to land. The farmer's theory is that the clover restores lost plant food to the soil. Nonsense, How could clover restore plant food without obtaining it from the atmosphere? If clover thus obtains plant food without obtaining it from the atmosphere? If clover thus obtains plant food then all other vegetation works on the same plan and we must come to that which will increase the power of the plant to draw from the atmosphere.

A good conductor for the electric currents is the one absolute necessity, a moist subsoil is the only way to secure at a conductor and this may be accomplished either by deep rooted grans of by undertow irrigation. With the latter the land will never wear out by continuing one kind of crop and therefore crop rotation will become innecessary, Great incrovements in crop production are waiting for the recopie to get rid of their slily superstitions.

IT WAS A HUMMER.

Tre was a hummer.

Bresham Prediction of The Resisten Post was a hummer.

"THE MELANCHOLY DAYS HAVE COME.

The saddest of the year," not when antumn has arrived, as the post Strant intimates but when a follow sets billous. The "sere and yellow lear" is in his complexion, if not in the follows at the history of the same playing in the follows by the same strength of the follows liver, and regulate his bowels, besides the liver, and regulate his bowels, besides the liver, and regulate his bowels, besides the line his stomach and healthfully stimulating his kidneys. Maisris, rheumaths and nervousness are also relieved by the litters.